Who is the MSRT?

History is more than facts and dates. It's people.
 ~ Dr. Betsy Peter

April 14, 1931, at 8:00pm a group of 22 x-ray technicians met in a borrowed office space at 711 Boylston Street in Boston, MA to discuss the forming of a society. The group formed in response to perceived socio-economic concerns facing "technicians" of the time, the need to keep up to date with radiographic techniques, equipment, and procedures and to promote the study and application of radiologic techniques. The Boston Society of Radiographers (BSR)* was incorporated in Boston on May 8, 1931. An affiliation agreement with the American Association of Radiological Technicians was signed on May 8, 1931. The first official meeting after the incorporation was held on June 9, 1931, at 652 Huntington Avenue in Boston, Massachusetts.

*The name was changed to Massachusetts Society of X-Ray Technicians in October 1934 and then to Massachusetts Society of Radiologic Technologists in May 1965.
